

Fingerprinting in Schools

Given the history of fingerprinting in Scotland and the imminent arrival of the Fingerprint Inquiry Report the Scottish Government's apparent support for fingerprinting of school children seems perverse to say the least. Personally given the present uncertain state of fingerprinting as a science I would steer well clear of endorsing the use of biometrics in schools without a great deal more research.

<http://news.scotsman.com/news/39Trivial39-use-of-electronic-ID.6673175.jp>