

Justice 1 Enquiry Report

The ongoing debate on www.cplex.com in respect of the parliamentary enquiry continues and is well worth following if you wish to discern the truth.

IT is the most comprehensive critique of the report to date and shows that far from exonerating the SCRO experts and Messrs Swann, Berry and Graham it criticises them severely. In contrast criticism of Arie Zeelenberg, PatWertheim and Allan Bayle is virtually non-existent.

While the reports conclusions were muted it joins the mounting list of independent enquiries that have condemned SCRO and its supporters.

It is now generally accepted that the experts were wrong and are discredited.

The book 'Shirley McKie – The Price of Innocence' due out in April will show an analysis of all past evidence in this case and will show that an enquiry into criminality is now overdue.

The current attempts by SCRO ally ex-detective Les Brown to re-cycle disgusting allegations against Shirley first made two years ago to the police are a desperate effort to save face. Like all the other lies they will be found out.

The police enquiry is welcomed I will ensure that the results are made known.
