When you read an article like the following one: <http://www.thetimes.co.za/News/Article.aspx?id=591801>, I expect you to begin to doubt your own convictions about this case. I want to assure you that this is typical of sensational press and not the true picture.

Fred is doing well and there is no need for concern. Yes there are many things he cannot remember or explain. He cannot remember the detail of what happened during the hours of the night AFTER he received the news of Inge's death. Only a psychopath would have remembered everything. Then the prosecution put false statements to him as fact in cross-examination. This did rattle him a bit, but when we checked the record it proved that Fred answered exactly as testified by Marius Botha although he was challenged with incorrect facts. He did well there.

Yes he did become very emotional, but for comprehensible reasons. Once again any different would have been questionable. So, please rest assured that it is going well and there is no reason for concern.

Indications are that his cross examination will be finished by Wednesday, 24th, arguments to be completed the next week and indication by the judge is that his verdict will be delivered towards the end of November, possibly the 26th and onwards.

Thanks once again for your loyal support.

Best regards,

Louis
